Advocacy for an Institute of Human Studies

10 There is a need for setting up a world-class institute for human studies that integrates scientific and humanistic pursuits, both pure and applied, with a focus on holistic development, rooted in human values. — Tara Mohanan, Vigneshwar Ramakrishnan, K P Mohanan & Bhushan Patwardhan

Global Hunger Index 2022

14 At first, the arguments put forward by the government to question India's GHI 2022 ranking appear technically valid. However, being founded on narrow conceptual considerations, they are insufficient to defend India's position. — Neetu Choudhary

Drug Price Control in India

17 Price control of life-saving essential medicines is the need of the hour, but the National Pharmaceutical Pricing Authority has allowed a hike of 10% in nearly 800 drugs and devices listed under the National List of Essential Medicines from 1 April 2022 because of the rising input costs. — Krithiga Narayanan

Food Insecurity among Students in India

21 The scale and depth of the problem of student food insecurity is examined and four key considerations are outlined that will need to be borne in mind in policy efforts to address the issue. — Manisha Priyam, Craig Jeffrey & Jane Dyson

Sharing in Cities, and Stacked Streets

31 How should we distribute land areas between amenities—schools, hospitals, parks—and private plots for homes and jobs? What is the ideal proportion for each? This study attempts to extract the guiding principles and concludes with a detailed study of the redevelopment of BDD Chawls at Worli, Mumbai. — Shirish B Patel

Monetary Policy and the Role of Information Shock

38 Inflation-targeting central banks supplement their monetary policy announcements with communication in the form of speeches and publication of text documents. The present paper attempts to identify and examine the efficacy of an information shock in influencing the inflation expectations of households, interest rate expectations of agents, output and inflation. — Anuradha Patnaik

Corporate Irresponsibility and Smokescreen of the Corporate Veil

47 The accepted notion in business and economics, which has seeped deeply in popular imagination too, that corporations exist primarily for benefiting their shareholders and hence their "accountability" is restricted to their shareholders only, is critically examined. — Rahul Varman

Coordination Failure in Local Government Networks

55 Using a decentred approach, we examine the implementation network for the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act, 2005 in the panchayats of West Bengal. The study shows that the inability to address a hidden agenda often makes bureaucratic leadership ineffective, whereas control over public discourse makes political executives better suited to manage networks. — Joydeep Guha, Bhaskar Chakrabarti

Brexit and the Rise of Rishi Sunak

10 The British political establishment shows no signs of the profound political rethinking required in the aftermath of the damaging effects of Brexit.
— Amir Ali

Pakistan in the Aftermath of Floods

14 As Pakistan's worst affected recover from the recent floods, the province of Sindh and Balochistan will need serious reparatory action from both local and international actors. — Abira Ashfaq

Food Security for Interstate Migrants

18 This article uses a newly compiled transaction-level data set on 2 million-plus ration purchases made by interstate migrants to study the One Nation, One Ration Card scheme. — Sarthak Agrawal, Archana Agnihotri

Rising Inequalities in Income in India

29 In India, the prevailing inequitable socio-economic structure and the influence exerted by the socio-economically privileged sections on economic policymaking and implementation are responsible for the rise in income inequalities. The experience of the countries that pursued globalisation alongside policies to reduce inequalities shows that the rise in income inequalities is avoidable. — C H Hanumantha Rao

Soil Nutrition and Fertiliser Use

37 This paper explores the determinants of fertiliser application in Punjab through an analysis of both secondary data and a primary survey-based case study. An analysis of primary data indicates that the fertiliser policy favouring urea has encouraged its overuse, which is incongruent with the soil nutrient level, and this might be one of the possible contributing factors to the soil nutrient imbalance in the study location. — Partha Saha, Krishanu Karmakar

Dalit Hindus in Bangladesh

45 By using both qualitative and interpretative methods complemented by field visits, this paper attempts to trace Dalit Hindus' movement from forced migration into ascribed untouchability. Their present socio-economic status and living conditions in Dhaka are explored as also the recent spotlighting of their underdevelopment by civil society and government action.
— Anindita Ghoshal, Fairouz Jahan & Shah Md Azimul Ehsan

Urban Cooperative Banks in Crisis?

53 The collapse of the Punjab and Maharashtra Cooperative Bank in 2019 raised questions about the dependability of the urban cooperative banking system in India. This paper examines the problems faced by urban cooperative banks and analyses their future potential against the backdrop of their historical performance with regard to financial inclusion.
— Awantika Rajauria

Political Aspects of 'Freebies'

33 The use of terms like "freebies" and "revadi culture" is an assault by the state-capital nexus on the lives of millions of working people, by keeping them vulnerable in order to discipline them, as an integral part of the neo-liberal agenda. — Avinash Kumar, Manish Kumar

Intergenerational Effects of Educating Girls

40 While it is well-established that maternal education positively impacts infant and child outcomes, less is known about its influence on adolescents. We explore how maternal education affects learning outcomes, agency (self-esteem and mobility), and gender role attitudes of adolescents aged 15–21 from a 2018 survey in Jharkhand. — Mukesh Ravi Raushan, Shireen J Jejeebhoy

DCR33: From Development Control to Promotion

48 In 2018, almost 10 years after the process was initiated in 2009, the development plan of Mumbai was sanctioned. Through an analysis of Mumbai's development plan process, this paper offers a glimpse into the divergent values and interests of powerful groups, and how these interests are coordinated and reconciled in the city. — Hussain Indorewala

Import Surge and Domestic Competitiveness

56 The recent import surge of raw agarbatti in India presumes to have a detrimental impact on the employment and profitability of the domestic firms. A deep dive indicates that imports of bamboo sticks from China and raw incense sticks from Vietnam have adversely affected the domestic incense stick units. — Tamanna Chatuurvedi, O P Wali

Labour Agency and Global Production Networks

32 Recognising an increasing interface of the domestic labour—informal as well as unorganised—with the global production networks, this article engages with two specific research concerns. One is the relevance of traditional trade unions and the other is the role of the new, even as both labour standards and rights confront the challenges of capital favouring new labour legislations. — Keshab Das

The Cyclical Burden of Wages and Time Poverty

39 With a surge in student and white-collar population, Pune has attracted migrant labourers to meet the demand of domestic work. This paper attempts to understand the lives of part-time female domestic workers in the Viman Nagar neighbourhood. It explores the current market conditions of domestic work by examining the wage trends and perceived negotiating power among the respondents. — Aditi Natarajan, Malavika Rangarajan

A Green Model of Development

47 The central proposition of this paper is that the Kerala economy must grow on a path that leverages the strengths of its ecosystem, both natural and social, in a way that engenders growth that is widely inclusive and inherently sustainable. The central concern must be whether and how far the various economic activities find a harmonious alignment with the differentia specifica of Kerala's unique ecological wealth and social circumstances. — Mihir Shah

Actionable and Comprehensive Data Protection Legislation

55 A rapid shift towards the digital modes of service delivery has highlighted the urgency to protect the privacy and security of the citizens' data. Through a critical examination of India's fragmented state of data protection legislation, we advocate for centralising the citizens' rights in all policies and legislations. — Deepika Saluja, Krati Shrivastava, Anil Jacob & Oommen John
